

UNISCAPE Research and Teaching

A survey on the scientific activities of the network Universities

As you know, UNISCAPE has just turned ten. An important cultural network with shared visions and goals has been consolidated during this decade, capable to foster the discussion and debate on landscape topics through academic disciplines and across national borders.

We would like to explore at this point all the skills and competences within the network, in order to redesign an updated map of the research and teaching of the Universities joining UNISCAPE.

For this reason, we are asking your collaboration by completing this survey on the scientific activities of the network Universities
