International Workshop

Politecnico di Milano

Polo Territoriale di Piacenza

Topic

Borders. Porous Territories

“Borders. Porous Territories” investigates the notion of borders as dynamic interfaces where ecological, cultural, and political processes converge. Moving beyond territorial demarcations, it interprets the landscape as an evolving field shaped by perception, memory, and movement. The workshop reflects on the continuity of environmental and social systems that transcend jurisdictional lines, viewing migration, climate change, and air quality as expressions of this transboundary condition. The LOL direction and the leaders of the 2026 ateliers will guide students to develop a critical reading of the places where contemporary forms of conflict emerge - spatial, social, or environmental - exploring how these tensions redefine our understanding and representation of landscape today.
